REVIEWS BY ANGUS: LATEST LOCAL RELEASES

EARTH CADET - PENANCE (REDUX)

Single - 2/10/26
Genre - Alt-Rock

earthcadet.bandcamp.com

Strap in for another banger from Earth Cadet, back to polish another older track. This time in their sights is “Penance”. Everything sounds a lot more polished in this new version, the guitars are less muddy, the drums have a bit more punch to them and the vocals sit better in the mix. The original was still a great sounding song but this version just tightens everything up and whacks a well deserved shiny new top coat on it.

This is the second “(Redux)” we have gotten from Earth Cadet, the first being”Parasocialite (Redux)” back in July this year, and I hope it is a trend we continue to see. The original version of this track dropped as a single in April of 2025.

I probably said this in the last one, but I love when a band revisits a song and gets to put all of their newly acquired skills into it. Sometimes you have the vision to be able to create a great song, but just don’t quite have the ability to pull it off the way it sounds in your head, so it is awesome when you finally do. It’s also a really great showcase of their evolution and I’m keen to hear what’s next.

BILL SHOCK & THE COST OF LIVING - HIGHLY RATED

EP - 11/10/26
Genre - Punk

billshock.bandcamp.com

Wallet hurting? Prices rising with no end in sight? Well the new debut EP from Bill Shock & The Cost Of Living won’t fix it, but it’ll give you the perfect soundtrack to help you keep pushing through until pay day. From the first high hat hit on “Lose My Mind” to the last chord of “Keyboard Warrior” this EP had me captivated. This has easily been my most anticipated release of the year and boy did the guys from Bill Shock deliver. Six raw and aggressive tracks combined into one killer EP, I don’t think they could’ve created a better package if they’d tried.

One thing I think is really cool is that each member has at least one song where they get to do lead vocals. The three of them have distinct voices, and it really serves the songs they perform on, and yet they all still sound like Bill Shock songs. It’s awesome to see that it’s not just one person’s brain child, it really comes through in the recordings, the energy from everyone is dialed up to eleven.
Another thing they’ve nailed is the group vocals, it sounds great in the recordings but it’s also a great way to get the crowd engaged especially in “Rates Up” and “Keyboard Warrior”. This is definitely my favorite release to come out this year, they’ve really caught lightning in a bottle with this one. I don’t have enough words to sing this EP’s praises so that only leaves one thing. Time for you to go out and wrap your ears around this one, you won’t regret it!

RELAYS - DID YOU HEAR THAT WATER IS WET?

Album - 22/10/26
Genre - Punk
relayspunk.bandcamp.com

The long wait is over, Relays second album “Did You Hear That Water Is Wet?” is here! Ten raunchy and in your face tracks wrapped into a neat little package. This album touches on all things from body builders to cyclists and even plovers, no one or thing is safe from the Relays scopes.

Relays released four singles for this album beginning back in July with “Laziest Man In Australia” and then releasing one every month leading up to the album. After listening to the album I think they did a really great job picking which songs should be singles. They picked great songs that were catchy and showed off their sound, but were still able to keep some heat back for the album that could’ve easily done well as singles.

Some of the stand out tracks for me are “Cyclists”, “Body Building” and “Cooked”. The latter being the closing track, It’s got a killer almost pop punk riff but a bit heavier. The chorus has some great group vocals so it’s great to sing along to, and I quite enjoyed the ending devolving into madness. This is a fun, and very Australian album so you should go and check it out.

GINGER AND THE CHIEFS - LET ME

Single - 31/10/26
Genre - Rock
www.instagram.com/gingerandthechiefs

Their engines are revved up and there is no stopping the powerhouse that is Ginger And The Chiefs. Pumping out a new single only a month after their debut. “Let Me” is fresh out of the oven for your listening pleasure. Mixing crunchy distorted guitars and heavy hitting drums with a Hip-Hop vocal style, this isn’t a band you want to sleep on.

This is Ginger And The Chiefs second single, their first being “Body Clock” that came out late September. With only two songs out they’re really showing us what great range they have. “Body Clock” was heavy, aggressive and in your face, where this new track has a lot more space to breathe, the heavy guitars are still there but they’re not in the forefront. And we get a lot more singing on the song as well. I was a massive fan of the vocals on the first single but it’s really cool to hear the variation we get in this track.

If you’re a fan of new and exciting music, and itching for a style you haven’t heard before, this is the one for you. I’m super keen to hear what comes next from these guys, as I’m sure my expectations will be blown out of the water as they were this time. I hope they’re lining up some gigs because that’d be a killer experience.
